

Jennifer Prosek
Chief Executive Officer and Founder
CJP Communications

Jennifer Prosek is the founder and CEO of CJP Communications (CJP), where she leads many of the firm's key accounts. Under her leadership, the firm has become a leading international public relations and financial communications consultancy with offices in New York, Connecticut and London.

With more than 75 professionals, the firm ranks among the top 35 independent public relations firms in the U.S., and among the top five financial communications consultancies in the UK. The firm was recently named to Inc. Magazines 2009 list of fastest-growing private companies.

In 2009, Prosek was named an "Emerging Power Player" by PR Week magazine, which lauded her for "combining an MBA education and instinct" and building "this rising agency's profile and reputation over the past few years." She was also inducted into the Arthur Page Society, which includes chief communications officers of Fortune 500 companies and CEOs of the world's leading public relations agencies.

In 2009, CJP won Crisis Communications Campaign of the Year and Investor Relations Campaign of the Year by PR News. CJP was also named among best agencies to work for by The Holmes Report. The firm is currently a PR Week finalist for Agency of the Year and Crisis Communications Campaign of the Year. Clients of the firm include GE Capital, Travelers, Edward Jones, First Reserve Corporation, Swiss Re and Franklin Templeton.

Prosek received her MBA from Columbia University and her undergraduate degree from Miami University in Ohio. She serves on the board of directors of the New York City Partnership for the Homeless.