

London Marriott Grosvenor Square appoints Kevin Kelly as the new General Manager

London Marriott Grosvenor Square has just appointed a new General Manager to head up this prestigious London hotel, one of Marriott's Flagship five star properties. Kevin Kelly, aged 39, is one of the youngest General Managers to be running a London hotel.

Kelly has been with the Marriott group for nine years, and has gained experience working at the highest level in Operations, Sales & Marketing and General Management. Most recently he was General Manager of the London Marriott Marble Arch, where he focussed on increasing business from the Middle East, prior to which he worked as Director of Sales & Marketing at the London Marriott Grosvenor Square (2001 - 2003) and Director of Food & Beverage also at the London Marriott Grosvenor Square (1999 - 2001).

Kevin Kelly has also worked for Shire Inns in various management roles from Trainee Manager to General Manager at two separate properties.
